What are your perceptions/feelings about program review and the process?
Program Review as a Tool

Evaluation is a diagnostic tool that thorough an ongoing process, aids in identifying problems and aids in solving problems. It allows for the documentation, advocacy and facilitation of goals to improve student outcomes.

It is an opportunity for an institution to reflect on the successes and challenges of their academic program; to develop a future direction for the program; and to consider how they can improve their program to enhance student learning and success.
Program Review as a Tool

In a piece in Change, Lee Shulman (2007) posits that assessment is a form of narrative and argues that counting without narrative is meaningless.

The role of an institution is to give an account on the contribution to the education of its students.

But we rarely provide info to make a compelling narrative – we tell data and process stories.
Program Review as a Tool

• What did we do and why? Based on what evidence?

• What changes were made to learning processes, practices, and approaches? Why?

• What evidence of learning do we have? How trustworthy is it?

• Where do we feel strongly about student learning and where are we maybe a bit more concerned? Why?

• How are we considering which evidence is included or represented and which voices in the telling of our stories?

Equity-Minded Assessment

• Check biases and ask reflective questions throughout the assessment process to address assumptions and positions of privilege.

• Use multiple sources of evidence appropriate for the students being assessed and the assessment effort.

• Include student perspectives and take action based on perspectives.

• Increase transparency in assessment results and actions taken.

• Ensure collected data can be meaningfully disaggregated and interrogated.

• Make evidence-based changes that address issues of equity that are context-specific.

Equity-Minded Assessment

Assessment is not exempt from being complicit or contributing to oppression, biased interpretation, erasure of identities, or inviting only privileged perspectives for contributions. While we work as assessment professionals, we are human beings and still subject to the biases of our cultures.

Best Practices

• Engage in active self-reflection or reflexivity.
• How do your identities shape your approach to data collection and analysis?
• What voices are elevated?
• How is evidence determined to be valid?
• Who has a say in the credibility of evidence
Discussion

• What areas of the program review are challenging for your institution?

• How do you define meaningful feedback?

• How can your peers outside of your institution can be helpful to you in the program review process?

• Where can OCCRL/ICCB be helpful to you in the process?
